HMP Wandsworth

Hollywood visits Wandsworth

Neve Campbell, left, and Jeremy Irons, centre, performed a variety of readings to prisoners at Wandsworth as part of a Phoenix Trust programme

HMP Wandsworth played host to two Hollywood actors as part of an event organised by the Prison Phoenix Trust. Jeremy Irons and Neve Campbell delivered a programme of moving readings about imprisonment to an audience of 200 guests. Dave Powers, an Australian vocalist and guitarist, performed two rousing blues numbers as well as interval music while guests enjoyed refreshments. Jeremy Irons then led an auction of donated goods which raised more money for the charity. The Prison Phoenix Trust encourages the disciplines of meditation and yoga in prisons and there are 157 classes all over the prison estate.
